SATURDAY, JUNE 2, 1798.

Whitehall, June 2, 1798.

A DISPATCH, of which the following is a Copy, has been this Day received from His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, by His Grace the Duke of Portland, His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Home Department.

My Lord, Dublin Caſtle, May 29, 1798.

I Have only Time to inform your Grace, that I learn from General Dundas, that the Rebels in the Curragh of Kildare have laid down their Arms, and delivered up a Number of their Leaders.

By a Diſpatch I have this Inſtant received, I have the further Pleaſure of acquainting your Grace, that Sir James Duff, who with infinite Alacrity and Addreſs, has opened the Communication with Limerick, (that with Cork being already open) had arrived at Kildare whilſt the Rebels had Poſſeſſion of it, compleatly routed them, and taken the Place.

I have the Honor to be, &c.

CAMDEN.

P. S. The South is entirely quiet, and the Rebels in the Neighbourhood of Dublin, are ſubmitting and delivering up their Arms.
